IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, March 27. Mr. George Lambert, who appeared to Government to remove restrictions on the export trade, Mr. Austin Chamberlain emphasised that the Government's policy was to establish control and Government interference as soon as possible. Much progress had already been made. The export of cotton goods was free except to blockaded countries, restrictions on which were maintained for reasons of international policy. The Government had raised the better we should be pleased, Government would do all it could to remove the increase of production. The Government would do all it could to remove the increase of production. The Government would do all it could to remove the increase of production.

According to the "Manchester Guardian" the proposal to send a commercial mission to the East is progressing. It is suggested that it shall consist of a Lancashire ship cotton manufacturer, a Manchester shipper, two cotton Trade Union leaders and two officials of the Overseas Trade Department. It is pretty certain that the mission will also visit India. Reuter.

THE WORLD'S SHIPPING.

ALLIED AND NEUTRAL LOSSES.

(From the American Agency.)

WASHINGTON, March 27. Mr. Hurley, Chairman of the U.S. Shipping Board, reported he estimates the world shipping shortage due to the actual loss by war and interruption of the building programme to be 15,225,000 gross tons. The Allies and neutrals suffered a total loss by enemy action, marine risk, and capture of 15,218,000 gross tons, and gained by construction, 14,000,249 gross tons. The net loss of the Central Powers was 1,218,000 gross tons. Japan and the United States are the only two countries possessing more shipping than when the war began. Japan increased her shipping 25 per cent, and the United States 125 per cent. In August, 1914, the United States' shipping merchant marine consisted of 2,706,317 gross tons. On November 11, 1918, she had increased to 2,123 vessels of 5,015,180 gross tons. The United States' shipping merchant marine consisted of 2,706,317 gross tons. On November 11, 1918, she had increased to 2,123 vessels of 5,015,180 gross tons.

The "Economic" of Paris publishes a table showing the position of the merchant marine of the world before, during, and after the war. It estimates the tonnage of the various countries as follows:

	Tons.
Great Britain	18,350,000
United States	3,272,000
Norway	2,505,000
France	2,300,000
Italy	1,528,000
Japan	1,012,000
During the war the losses suffered were:—
