A CHAPTER OF HORRORS.

London, Aug. 17. (2.5 p.m.) Details are officially published of gross outrages, perhaps unparalleled for ferocity or atrocity, upon British troops, and wounded men, in March last. The facts are authenticated by the sworn statements of British soldiers, who were of a party maltreated. A private of the Royal Highlanders tells how he and a number of his comrades were surrounded and compelled to surrender near Jarmy on March 28. "Our arms and equipment," he says, "were taken from us. We consisted of one officer and sixteen men, ten of whom were wounded. We were 'hired up' on our original front line trench and left without a guard for some time then a German officer and two men appeared on the edge of the trench. One man carried a container on his back and the other was armed with a rifle and a short sword. The officer, who carried a revolver, gave an order and the man with the container turned a stream of liquid fire straight down the trench in which we were standing." He could plainly see that we were unarmed and he continued to play on us for six or seven minutes.

The witness added that he and five of his companions who were able to move scrambled down the top of the British line. Another private says that after he and some other prisoners were captured and were being marched down a trench to an emplacement about six feet deep, nine feet wide and four feet high, he saw a German officer and two men appear on the edge of the trench. One man carried a container on his back and the other was armed with a rifle and a short sword. The officer, who carried a revolver, gave an order and the man with the container turned a stream of liquid fire straight down the trench in which we were standing.
