SPANISH INFLUENZA.

RAVAGES IN CAIRO.

Spanish influenza is spreading enormously in Cairo and is being often accompanied by Broncho-Pneumonia which is causing many deaths. The reason perhaps for the Broncho-Pneumonia attacks is the continued change of the weather from cold to warm and rice-versa and the consequent neglect of patients, who receive slight attacks of influenza in the beginning, to avoid exposing themselves to draught. Precaution has proved to be absolutely necessary and if patients with slight attacks keep to their beds and do not expose themselves to the cold weather the result is practically always satisfactory and the patient in 9 cases out of ten is cured in 3 to 5 days—sometimes in 24 hours.

It is to be observed, however, that the Public Health Authorities have not taken the same precautions in Cairo that the Alexandria Municipality has taken with regard to the ventilation of cinemas and other public places. The matinées have been advanced by half an hour there in order to give the proprietors of cinemas and music halls sufficient time to ventilate their establishments between the afternoon and evening performances.

The tram-cars likewise are more crowded than ever owing to the reduction of their number decided upon during the war. If therefore it could be arranged to increase the number of cars and reduce the congestion no doubt the result would be an appreciable reduction in the number of cases of influenza.

The following precautions as to fighting influenza, which appeared in one of the latest London newspapers, may be of use to our readers:—

"Irrigate your nose three times a day with water at the temperature of the body and a mild antiseptic. If you do get influenza, keep away from other people." The third brief words an experienced doctor at one of the great hospitals summed up his advice. The germs which cause influenza are scattered by sneezing. A single sneeze will spread them from one end of a good sized room to another.

In the difficult days that lie ahead of us mutual considerations must be practised, and all must conform to rules that make for the good of the majority. Young people find their pleasures in attending crowded gatherings such as picture palaces, small theatres, dancing halls, concert lectures, and club rooms. Unless these places are kept fresh by a current of air, influenza germs are certain to lurk in them ready to attack. There is even greater danger that they will be carried home, to bring illness and trouble to others, and every member of a household should avoid having herself open to infection.

Patients who catch influenza must go to bed and remain there. It is foolhardy to get up and attempt to go about. Warmth is essential, and that can be secured by means of additional blankets and hot water bottles if necessary. There is no danger in breathing cold air, so the windows must be kept open to ensure the entrance of fresh air. Doctors are proving more and more convinced of the value of open-air treatment on lines similar to those followed in the case of tuberculosis. In some parts of the country soldiers suffering from influenza and ailments of a like nature are being treated in huts covered at the top but open at the sides to all the winds that blow. Another matter to be looked after is the general health of the individual. Doctors do not want patients in these days, their hands being too full already. Food is a very difficult subject, but as the winter approaches the people responsible for the welfare of others should do their utmost to provide proper nourishment. In many cases suitable feeding will do much to keep up that standard of health that helps to bring immunity, or at least enables those attacked to throw off illness with reasonable ease.

A common cold is not influenza, but it would be a good thing if popular opinion were formed so that in the same category, for it is as easily spread as the more serious epidemic, and it can cause very serious trouble. Now that thousands of women are working together, sometimes in offices that are not remarkably large and airy, it would be well to make a rule that any one who has what is usually known as a "catching" cold should stay at home, or she may infect a whole staff. The influenza epidemic is serious, and no one should regard precautions carefully or omit to follow the simple rules of hygiene that will at least help to prevent it spreading.

CAIRO AMUSEMENTS.

CHEERING THE CONVALESCENT. Armistice celebrations are still being conducted in Cairo military circles. To-day (Monday) a big fête in honour of General Allenby being held at Luna Park where a very excellent programme of entertainment has been arranged. A day or two ago, the Y.M.C.A. gave a grand convalescent fête to 3,000 men of H.M. E.E.F. starting with tea on the lawn in Ezbekiyh Gardens at 3.45 p.m. The participants were brought in by tram from the various outlying hospitals and everything worked harmoniously. The boys in blue and khaki had a most happy day, there being an abundance of cakes, ices, sweets etc., for their amusement and later on a waterpolo match. In the evening a grand concert was given by well-known artists. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the many voluntary workers who helped to make the outing so successful.

The patients of Nasrieh Hospital were similarly entertained by the men and officers. Which drives were organised for the inmates in the afternoon and acceptable prizes presented, but the piece-de-resistance was the excellent tea provided. The bed patients were not forgotten and the laughter and fun that proceeded did not prevent justice being done to the delicacies distributed. The Chief Matron and the C.O. visited the wards and took an active part dispensing the bounties. Other amusements beguiled the time until 8 p.m. when a grand concert was held. Three hearty cheers were given for the hosts and hostesses.

A NEW KURSAAL PROGRAMME. — The Kursaal Theatre was crowded on Thursday night when Mr. Maurice F. Bandman presented the Bandman Musical Comedy Company in "The Chocolate Soldier." This opera bufie in three acts was one of London's most famous successes and has not been played twice in Cairo. The comedy is based on "Arms and the Man," the famous work of George Bernard Shaw. It may at once be said that the Bandman Company scored a huge success and the production ranks amongst the best of their lengthy repertoire. Miss Dora Dolaro in the leading-role of Nadina sang and acted charmingly, her rendering of the popular "My Hero" bringing the house down. This artist also scored again with her letter-writing number, a song that is as art in itself. Mr. Bernard Ansell was his irrepressible self (although struggling with a severe cold) and his adventures as Bluntschli ("The Chocolate Soldier") never flagged. Miss Isabel Giudici as Aurelia added another to her list of successes whilst that versatile artist, Miss Ethel Hill, had a part apparently very much to her liking as Maacha. Mr. Frank Harrison as Colonel Popoff was responsible for much infectious humour and Mr. Angelini sang finely. His duet with Miss Hill, "Falling in Love" is a gem. Mr. Robbins as the Captain of a motley band of heroes made the most of his opportunities. Some excellent scenic and lighting effects had been arranged and the dresses were very pretty. A peasant dance by the Tzeas was heartily encored. The tuneful melodies of the play will never cease to charm and a word of praise is due to the genial Collins who conducted energetically and fostered good work by the artists. On Saturday "The Fairymaids" was played and on Sunday "The Running Girl" was again played to a crowded house.

THE AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH. — The continuation of the super film "The Diamond Queen" drew an immense audience to the Cinematograph on Friday evening last, when in addition to the eleventh and twelfth episodes of this premier detective photo-play, the management provided several other new films for the present week. Among those were "Very Occupied"—in which Charlie Chaplin convulses the audience. The superb dramatic comedy entitled "His Heiress," another vivid instalment of Gaumon's Actualities, and a further instalment of the War Annals. The great police drama "The Diamond Queen" is now at the climax of its development, and in the eleventh episode we again see the Spider at work on behalf of Pearl Standish, Carslake, who is thought to be dead, swims ashore undetected, and makes his way to Moses the money lender. The time the Spider tracks Carslake, discovers the diamond in Moses' safe, but is kidnapped by a mysterious chauffeur, who proves to be Carslake himself. In the twelfth episode the scene changes to a masked ball given by Pearl Standish to celebrate her engagement to Carlton. Here again Carslake attempts to steal the mounting of the diamond, and the prisoner is bent on a similar plan. This episode is full of surprises, in which jealousy, treachery, and courage again sway the characters in their fight for the fatal gem.

THE RADIUM CINEMA. — The programme of the Radium Cinema for the week commencing to-day, Monday, and ending on Sunday, December 1, includes the interesting local ceremony of the inauguration of the new Pharmaceutical Department of the Cairo First Aid Society which took place on Sunday, November 17, in presence of the Sultan. Other items on the programme are a one-reeled Charlie Chaplin comedy, the fifth episode of a drama entitled "To You for Life" with the famous Italian star, Italia Almirante Manzini as the leading figure, and another film entitled "For the Liberty of the Nations" is promised very shortly.

PALESTINE STAMPS.

HINTS TO PURCHASERS.

(To the Editor, "Egyptian Gazette").

Sir,—Through the medium of your valued journal, I should feel I was benefiting philatelic readers, especially those present serving in H.M. Forces, by bringing to their notice the fact that certain unscrupulous dealers in postage stamps are defrauding trusting purchasers in the matter of the issue of E.E.F. postage paid stamps which are in use in Palestine. As those interested in philately know, the first issue of these so-called E.E.F. postage stamps was unpunmed, was deep indigo in colour, and consisted of one denomination only, i.e., P.T.1. The sheets were rouletted and not perforated. A short while after these stamps made their appearance, the colour was altered to ultramarine but they were still rouletted. A few months ago new denominations, from 1 milleme to 5 piastres, were placed on sale, all being perforated and not rouletted as in the case of the first two printings of the P.T.1 stamp. A few days ago the new P.T.1 stamp made its appearance in a perforated state, so as to conform with the whole of the issue, but instead of being ultramarine in colour, the original colour of deep indigo as been adhered to. The first issue of the P.T.1 stamp is now comparatively rare, and finding a loophole for their deceitful tactics for profit certain dealers here in Egypt are offering to the public, but more particularly to our military friends, the present issue with the perforated issue of 1917, representing these faked stamps as the first issue, and commanding fabulous prices for them, which I regret to say the dealers have already obtained too often. In such a condition it is fairly difficult to distinguish the faked from the real, unless carefully studied. Serious philatelists, of course, would not be taken in with this obvious fake, especially as they kept up-to-date with their philatelic literature, but to the many who are placing their money in the greater number who purchase to send a souvenir to stamp collection collectors beyond the seas, the fact of the profit-seeker having having been faked would possibly not occur to them. As far as I am aware there are no forgeries—or I should rightly say non-rouletted—stamp of the first issue, and it would be as well did intending purchasers remember this point.

Thanking you for the space necessary for the publication of this letter,

Yours, etc.,
J. L. Maude.

REVOLUTION AND ART.

BOLSHEVIST PLANS.

Art and revolution are going hand in hand in Russia. The People's Commissariat for Public Instruction is now proposing to put up in the streets and open places of Moscow fifty monuments "to great men in the domain of revolutionary and public activity, of philosophy, literature, science, and arts." Special stress is laid upon the provision that the work is to be given to "young and independent artists who may now be starving in the garrets, rather than to reputed academicians, as the case has been hitherto." There is to be no jury; models will be put up by the artists themselves for public inspection and public verdict. Each artist commissioned to do the work will be paid 7,910 roubles (£800). The provisional list of great men contains twenty-three revolutionists, from ancient times to our own days, including Spartacus, Tiberius, Gracchus, Brutus, Marx, Bebel, Jaures, Vaillant, Marat, Garibaldi, Bakunin, Plekhanov, and Volodarsky (recently assassinated). The provisional list of writers is confined to Russians, and contains practically everybody of note from Pushkin to Tolstoy.

DEATH OF LORD KITCHENER.

TSARITSA'S PRIVATE-WIRE.

Mr. Henry Mapp, head of the Salvation Army in Russia, who has just returned to New York, says a Reuter telegram, from that country, declares that the Tsaritsa maintained a private wire connected with Potsdam and by this means divulged all the Allied secrets to Germany. A special message was sent to the Kaiser in regard to the sailing of the warship on which Lord Kitchener made his last voyage.

FRESH MASSACRES IN ARMENIA.

TARTARS AND TURKS' ATROCITIES.

Reuter's Agency understands that, according to a telegram just received from Erzeli, the Turco-Tartars, after the fall of Baku, commenced their programme of devastation. The Armenian regions of Elisabethpol and of Chouchi, also the regions of Noukha-Areshwere pillaged and the population massacred. All the young people were deported by the Turco-Tartars, and sent into the interior of the country, there to suffer the fate of the Armenians deported from Turkey in 1915.

Most of the inhabitants are taking refuge in the mountains, they to organise resistance to the death. The British success in Palestine and the menace to Constantinople as a consequence of events in the Balkans might lead the Turks to hasten the execution of their programme of devastation and depopulation if the Armenians are not succoured.

ANARCHY IN SLAVONIA.

The "Magyar Kurir" learns from Szabadka, Slavonia, that for some time brigandage has been assuming more and more dangerous dimensions in Slavonia. Bands of robbers up to the number of fifty are in the habit of attacking, robbing, and sometimes murdering the gendarmes. In the village of Indija a number of peasants were required to hand over more than 100,000 kroner under threat of death. The authorities were powerless against the well-armed bands. The greatest insecurity prevails not only on the country roads, but in the villages, which are constantly exposed to attack.

A Petrograd telegram says the Extraordinary Commission of the Western Region has ordered ex-General Seman and fourteen others, mostly ex-officers, to be shot.
