The President of the Burmah Anglo-Indian Empire League has approached the Burmah Government with regard to the difficulty experienced by Anglo-Indian soldiers invalided out of the army in obtaining employment. Most of these men enlisted voluntarily and sacrificed their positions to do so. The League has rendered temporary assistance to many of them, and has granted loans in some cases to provide clothing, etc.

A NOTABLE SPEECH.

GENERAL SMUTS ON THE GERMAN COLLAPSE.

PLEA FOR CONCILIATION.

LONDON, Nov. 14.

(11.30 p.m.) (Delayed) General Smuts representing the Government as the host at a dinner to American editors in London, said: "America's collaboration with the British Empire in reconstructing the future of the world is as significant and promising as her entry into the war." He paid a tribute to the large-hearted sportsmanlike way in which the British were celebrating peace. There was no vindictiveness and no hymns of hate. He had little differences with the British, as the Americans had, but: "Let us freely and frankly admit that they are a great people." (Cheers). The fearfulness of the fate of Prussian militarism was the most awful and most solemn judgment in history, but all Europe to-day was broken and bleeding, and ancient institutions were collapsing wholesale. There was the danger of a great setback from which Europe would not recover for generations. The Allies must now organise the world against hunger and unemployment owing to the new continental situation which was being rapidly reorganised. The League of Nations had become a sheer practical necessity and the Inter-Allied machinery which was going to ration the countries against hunger, was the first step towards the League; similarly, owing to shortages raw materials would have to be rationed. The future map of Europe would soon be a veritable medley of small nations some of which were already threatened with internal disorders, therefore a future international organisation to keep peace was imperative. Thus the League from small beginnings would develop vitality to attract a great volume of public opinion eventually becoming strong enough to essay the supreme task of preserving the world peace. The League moreover would usefully be employed to depute a nation to act on the League's behalf in governing certain territories as in the case of some of the German ex-colonies, some of these were quite fairly and properly claimed by and must be given to the dominion which had conquered them. But as regards those not so claimed, certain Powers might be deputed to hold them, as mandatories of the League until the question of their ultimate disposal was settled, because the Allies would resist to the utmost their restoration to Germany as it was impossible to foresee how Germany would develop in the future. In conclusion General Smuts eloquently urged the making of the best of use of the present opportunities. The age of miracles was never past and the whole world was again plastic and susceptible to the new creative impression and to being remade to better ends on the lines of universal freedom and justice, thus permanently establishing goodwill among the classes and the nations. The history of South Africa since the Boer War bore immortal testimony to the wisdom of the policy of conciliation, if the victims of this greatest of all wars applied the same problems in the same large temper, as the British did in South Africa, he believed great reconciliation of the peoples might eventuate even to the disappearance of war itself.

MORE ABDICATIONS.

COLLAPSE OF GERMAN PRINCIPALITIES.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 16.

The Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin have adbicated. Reuter.

("Gazette's" Special Service.)

BERNE, Nov. 14.

The Princes of Lippe-Detmold and of Reuss have abdicated. H.

The Duke of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha is the son of the late Duke of Albany, the youngest son of Queen Victoria, and his mother, a Princess of Waldeck-Pyrmont, resides in England. This Duchy was inherited by the late Duke of Edinburgh, and on his death without male issue, ought to have been inherited by Prince Arthur of Connaught, who refused to accept it, so it fell to the son of Queen Victoria's youngest son.

Lippe is a small principality of 469 square miles with a population of 150,000.

Reigning Prince, Leopold IV., born May 30, 1870, son of the late Count Ernst of Lippe Biesterfeld, and Carola, Countess of Wartenberg; married August 16, 1901, to Princess Bertha of Hessen-Philippsthal-Barchfeld; offspring: Ernst, born June 12, 1902; Leopold Bernhard, born May 19, 1904; Karoline, born August 4, 1905. Count Leopold assumed the Regency in succession to his father, September 27, 1904, but the right of succession was claimed by Prince Georg of Schaumburg-Lippe, and the dispute was settled by a judicial court at Leipzig on October 25, 1905.

Reuss consists of the two smallest principalities in Germany, the elder branch of the House of Reuss having a realm of 122 square miles only.

The head of the elder branch is Henry XXIV, while the head of the younger branch is Henry XXVII. All the princes are called Heinrich, and to distinguish them they have numbers attached to their names, beginning and ending in each century. Number 1. is given to the first prince of the branch born in the century, and the numbers follow in the order of birth until the century is finished, when they begin again with number I.

HOW TO FEED EUROPE.

ARMISTICE REJOICINGS.

(From the American Agency.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.

The German Government through the Swiss Government has requested President Wilson to inform Chancellor Ebert by wireless whether he may be assured that the United States Government will send foodstuffs to Germany without delay if public order is maintained and equal distribution of food is guaranteed. President Wilson has replied that the Versaille's Council had assured the German people that everything is being done that is possible in the circumstances to supply food to relieve distressing want and that steps are being taken immediately to organise efforts on the same systematic system as in Belgium. The President suggested that by the use of idle tonnage of the Central Empires it ought presently to be possible to lift the fear of utter misery from their oppressed populations and set their minds free for new hazardous tasks of political reconstruction that is facing them on every hand. The President therefore is ready to consider favourably the supplying of foodstuffs to Germany and to take up the matter immediately with the Allied Governments provided they can be assured that public order continues to be maintained and equitable distribution guaranteed.

Mr. Hoover, addressing State Food Administrators, urged further sacrifice by the American people in order that the nation might fulfil its obligations towards stricken humanity of war—torn Europe. He states that North America must furnish sixty per cent. of the world's supply of foodstuffs. The United States and West Indies will be able to export twenty million tons as against six million tons prewar normal exports. Conditions in some parts of Europe will be beyond the reach of the United States. In Northern Russia there are forty million people with little chance of obtaining food this winter.

The Shipping Board ordered agents throughout the States to rush recruiting of merchant crews. There are now under construction 724 ships aggregating three and a half of million tons.

United States tobacco crop is the greatest in history. All the southern states except Tenesee and Kentucky show increases. North Carolina increased thirty-eight million pounds over last year. Acre yield 871 point 86 pounds compared 816 last year.

(From the American Agency.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.

The United States was given over to enthusiastic celebrations after the armistice was signed. From coast to coast business was practically suspended, crowds marched, cheered and sang in every village and city. Stock exchanges, department stores and shops were closed, the people everywhere joining in the celebrations in the streets. The news was flashed to all parts of the United States and was carried into remote areas by courier. The President was wildly cheered as he drove through the streets of Washington.

The Press throughout the United States unanimously approves the terms. The "New-York Sun" writes: "Arbitrary power which could and did destroy the world's peace is destroyed. The terms would make Bismarck marvel at our moderation, but if they are a hard penalty on the German people it is because the German people committed crimes and served the purposes of autocracy." All other papers write in similar vein.

AMERICA'S FORCES.

(From the American Agency.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.

When hostilities ceased the United States had over three and half million men under arms of whom 2,200,000 were in France. Troops coming to Europe now are mainly medical, Cargo shipments and supplies for troops continue unceasingly.

The Railroad Administration announces that the said roads would remain under Government control for 21 months after peace unless Congress enacts otherwise. It declares this necessary owing to great excepted haulage and reconstruction of material.

The Chairman of the Shipping Board announces that the armistice will cause no slackening in the board's programme, which now is producing 400,000 tons monthly.

U.S. ARMY IN FRANCE.

(From the American Agency.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.

Maximilian Foster, telegraphing from the American front after signing armistice says that at dawn no hint of armistice to the American Second Army was given and they attacked east of the Meuse in force at 5 o'clock preceded by a tremendous barrage and the Americans swept forward, hurling themselves against the barbed wire in face of tremendous devastating gunfire. At exact the minute of 11. like a final thunderclap of a clearing storm firing abruptly stopped and then fell silence. Amid cheers figures appeared on the skyline and gradually the whole line leaped from the trenches with a roar cheering. The night was uproarious with German cheering, the Americans taking the news more calmly. Along the front the majority took occasion to get a good night's sleep, but in the towns in the rear, lighted for the first time in four years, the French and Americans paraded the streets singing.

(From the American Agency.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.

Maximilian Foster, the correspondent of the American Committee on Public Information, telegraphs from the American line that in addition to the towns in that part of France continues with unabated joy, everyone taking for granted that war cannot be resumed. All day large explosions at the back of the German lines indicate that the enemy is blowing up ammunition dumps. Very few Germans were seen in the front lines, giving rise to the belief that plans already under way for their retirement to their own borders. The armistice terms forbid aeroplanes over German lines and therefore it is impossible to get any reliable information regarding enemy movements.
