MANNERS OF EGYPTIAN CHILDREN.

A PLEA FOR PLAY-GROUNDS AND CAMPS.

(BY AN ESYPTIAN CORRESPONDENT.)
One of the serious things connected with city life is the tendency of school children and working lads to follow the steps of Street Walfa, and strays. There have been percention are getting out of the hand and becoming very impertunent, A good deal becoming very impertunent, A good deal of this is doubtless due to the parents who leave their children to run wild in the stretch Another, reason, possibly, is the which I have heared and seen many instances.

Same are an seen many methods and the seen many method in the seen and a point of the seen and a seen and method in the seen and a point of the seen a

CAMP AS PART OF THE PLAYGROUND SYSTEM.

The benefits to be derived from a yearly outing, are very important. For apart, from the fact that the majority of Egyptian children have not the chance nor, in a good many cases, the means for a little holiday outside their own town, the camp with its main object as the development in the members of a sense of responsibility tian life in the next generation. And perhaps it is not too much to say that the effectiveness of an Egyptian Playground System would be much greater when there is a yearly outing. Children would look in a yearly outing, children would look in a yearly outing, children would look in a yearly outing. Children would look not a stached to their playground. Let it be supposed that the authorities in Egypt have recognised the value of the Playground and that Egypt has become one of those countries where Playgrounds swell as in tillages. Not there in edite as well as in tillages. Not there in edite as well as in tillages. Not the Playground System, may be locally adopted and how far it would benefit members of playgrounds.

in it would beacht members of play-grounds.

DISCIPLINE AND RESPONSIBILITY.

I have just remarked that the main object of the camp is to develop in the members a sense of responsibility. It was all been taught to "play the game," to make friends, to be clean and sociable. But there are duties to be performed in a camp and discipline to be eniant and saids. But there are duties to be performed in a camp and discipline to be maintained as well. There, they will have to lead a rough and simple their own needs, to make their beds, and make themselves generally useful. Remembering that the Director of the Playground has the complete control of the different planes to form a council to discuss all matters of discipline and organisation. The discipline of the camp is then placed under the control of a body of boy magintate and monitors whose basiness it is to penalties. The magistrates' court would be penalties. The magistrates' court would be penalties. The magistrates' court would be held daily when cases previously reported would be tried and the necessary disciplinary steps are taken. Then a number of These are under remonsible for the management of the camp. There is nothing in all this that Egyptian boys would not be able to fall in evit and vith great enjoyment. Apart from the ordinary orderly duties, singing come into the camp day. Lectures (if possible with lantern slides) on subjects likely to stimulate an intelligent interest are also a great feature in campalready in aristence in other complications of all national success of the camp when the discipline and example, the emotional stimulation of play, and the rough-and-tumble democracy of the camp was of the camp there is the responsible to build up their successful business conciliations of the camp and the success that will usebase.
