A STORY OF GALLIPOLI.

A STORY OF GALLIPOLI.

The ways of "the Twenty three"—Mr. Asquith's Cabinet during the earlier stages of the war—have come in force so the stages of the war—have come in force so the stages of the war—have come in force so the stages of the war—have come in force so the stages of the war—have come in force so thoroughly exposed as they are in an article. "The War-Office in War Time," in the January "Blackwood." The author, Major-Green ISI T. C. Callwell tells the story to the saystem He was told on November 23, 1915, to go to Paris and make the French War Minister, General Gallieri, acquainted with the fact that the War Council had just surr "sthout turber ado." On the following day the full Cabinet was to meet to endorsy the decision. General Callwell had his instructions from Mr. Asquith, then acting Secretary for General Callwell had his instructions from Mr. Asquith, then acting Secretary for Grown of the Garden Word with a telegram intimating that the Cabinet "had been unable to come to a decision, but were going to have another try freend Gallieni that evening, and decided to let the French Minister know exactly how matters stood. The rest of the General Callwell tells as follows:

There was a tale of the War Office sending sand to Egypt in the early days of the war, but it was thought incredible. However, it has been confirmed and at the Colonial Institute on January 3 it was announced that by order of the War Office a cargo of sand was sent out to Egypt for the purpose of filling sandbag, for the trenches, and was actually unlocated.

The Municipal Council of Paris has decided to request the Minister of Food to place at its disposal a certain number of tank railway wagons, to enable it to bring supplies of wins to the capital, and thus do away with the excessive prices now prevailing.
