COSSART'S THE EGYPTIAN SITUATION. THE ONLY BRITISH BAF

is also the country where everything goe by contraries, even to the twisting of the handle to open a door or a window. Thus it was quite in accordance with traditions that Egypt should have suddenly been struck with a slight touch of war maniwhen everyone else was thinking of peace Had the outbreak of the innate desire for when everyone else was thinking of peace. Had the outbreak of the innate desire for loot that resides in every man, especially if he be a Bedouin, occurred at the beginning of the war when there was some little chance of getting fire away with the booty there might have been some intelligent if dibugant resons, for the efforts, but taking place as it has done with the whole civil-order of the control of the the hard-working but sadly unsophistica-ted inhabitants of Egypt have done the right thing and seat Geogral Allenby out to this country, where he is known, respected—and liked—which last is a great aid in the task he has undertaken—to bring the country to its sense; to punish the criminal agitators, and, as he said himself to his audience of Egyptian no-tables in Cairo to study any sensible than the country of t right thing and sent General Allenby ou

Meanwhile although in the central part Meanwhile although in the central parts of the 'country order has been resetablished and the trains and telegraphs are again working normally, there is still a certain amount of violence, mostly of a predatory nature, in some of the outlying provinces in Lower Egypt and in Upper Egypt. After the unspeakable horrors of the raid on the Cairo-Laxor train, the world cries aloud for the punishment of the guilty. Punish-ment will-be awarded, General Allenby has the fuller-boyewise for that and it is in the interest of the Egyptians, then-alvess that a severe lesson should be given. It is Great Britain's duty to prove the control of the control of the control of the interest of the property of the control of the interest of the control of the control of the interest of the control of the control of the interest of the control of the control of the theory of the control of the control of the control of the interest of the control of the co more before the world at large mass see year capable of keeping the peace among and safeguarding the interests of the heteroge-neous population of Egypt. The Valley of the Nile and the Sucz Canal belong to the world and the only reason why Egypt is under the benevolent tutelage of Egypt is under the benevolent tuterage.

Great Britain is because the world acknowledges that it is to their interest that such ledges that it is to their interest that such ledges that it is to their inferest that one an important spot on the glost recommic account of the spot of the glost recommic account of the spot of the spot of the commic account in a proper and orderly namer. The task of governing the coun-try has thus fallen to Great Britain, and it is well for the Egyptians that it has been so. In fact ene of the finest punish-uents that could be dealt out to the crim-inal agitators, who have lured the fella-heen from their fields to deal blind blows at constituted authority, only to return it heen from their fields to deal blind bloss-ac constituted authority, only to return in many cases to find their homes burnt to the ground as a just punishment for their outrages, would be to send them to a Ger-man colony, supposing any used headful-places were left, or to a vilayet still under Turkish domination. They would soon begin its long for the fleshpots of Egypt-once more. But too much propertity hereds discontent. Hence the outbreak which General Allenbris is here to quell.

begin its long for the nesspots we work once more. But too much properly hreeds discontent. Hence the outbreak which General Allenhy is here to quell. The recent troubles in Egypt are only the proof that Egypt is at fast learning something from Europe. With her usual persity as has learnt the wrong thing first. She will now have to begin to learn all over again. The following story is being told of Pre-ident Poincaré. He had to reply to a peech in which he was congratulated on immortality he had achieved by join-ng the illustrious roll of the Presidents of ing the illustrious roll of the Presidents of France, "It is tune," he said, gravely, "I have achieved immortality, At least, my name will be remembered for all time for I see that the great chef Escoffier has discovered a new melload of cooking a fowl and has called it 'Poulard Poincaré,' Yes, Poulard Poincaré' and 'Peches Melba' will live as long as men and women eat!"
